Summary:

God's view concerning debt is all-inclusive. It's true that He expects us to avoid excessive borrowing and promptly pay back those we owe money to; however, it goes deeper than that. Jesus went to the cross to cancel not just our financial obligations, but also the debt that we owed for our sins. In His eyes, the debt that we now owe is one of respect, honor, and love to others. Putting the debt of love as our first priority causes supernatural debt cancellation in all other areas of our lives.

Notes:

1. Jesus paid the debt of our sins that we could never pay; we now owe love to others. The only debt we're now to acquire is the debt of love.
2. God blessed Paul so greatly that Paul felt indebted to the world and all the lost people in it.
3. Slavery today exists as financial debt; however, supernatural deliverance is available. The infinite debt of love will release an anointing to cancel the temporary debts of life.
4. Elisha's actions to help the man who lost a borrowed axe, and his willingness to help the widow, were motivated by love.
5. Jesus, who was love in human form, paid His taxes out of love and respect for others.
